2012 SUMMER LEGAL INTERNSHIP: FLORIDA YOUTH INITIATIVE

The Florida Youth Initiative, a project of the Southern Poverty Law Center, offers summer internships to exceptional second-year law students who possess strong academic backgrounds, excellent research and writing skills, and a commitment to public interest law. FYI, located in Miami, FL, uses public policy advocacy, legal representation, and community mobilizing to ensure that Florida's juvenile justice and education system results in positive outcomes for families, children, and communities. For more information, visit http://www.splcenter.org/careers/2012-summer-legal-internship-florida-youth-initiative.

Summer interns assist FYI's attorneys and community and youth advocates with significant legal research and writing, field investigations, outreach, and public policy advocacy. Substantial travel around the state of Florida may be required. Interns receive $700.00 per week. Interns are expected to begin sometime in early June 2012. A minimum commitment of ten weeks is desirable.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, resume, transcript, a writing sample (no longer than 15 pages), and the names and phone numbers of two references by October 21, 2011, to humanresources@splcenter.org. The project expects to select interns by mid-November 2011. No telephone inquiries.
