

To Whom It May Concern:

The Intercultural Human Rights Law Review would like to announce that we have scheduled our upcoming Symposium for Friday, October 19, 2012 from 8:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. The focus of the symposium will be:

“140 Characters or Less: Social Media, Human Rights, and the Law”

#IHRLR2012

We intend the discourse of the 2012 – 2013 symposium and publication to include, inter alia:

- Privacy issues on social media sites
- The manipulation of people and information using social media
- The relevance of International Law for social media, and particularly the importance of embedding human rights principles into software code
- Ethical concerns for the legal community concerning social media
- The rise of citizen media and the use of the Internet and social media by activists, NGOs and International Organizations
- Body scanners, CCTV microphones, RFID implants
- European controversies with technologies that affect privacy

Panelists will include:

- Professor Ira Nathenson, St. Thomas University School of Law
- Professor Molly Land, New York University Law School
- Professor Alexandra Rengel, Schiller University, and Comillas Pontifical University – ICADE
- Professor Nicola Boothe-Perry, Florida A&M University School of Law
- Professor Daniel Joyce, University of New South Wales
- Professor Hannibal Travis, Florida International University - College of Law

Sincerely,

2012 – 2013 Executive Board of the Intercultural Human Rights Law Review
