ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY:

The National Office for Black Catholics (NOBC) was an organization of Black Catholics in the United States, headquartered in Washington, DC. Its mission was “to make the Church relevant to the needs of the black community; to assist generally in the black liberation movement; to assist black Catholics in their efforts to become self-determining and to become an effective voice in the whole of Church government.”

NOBC was founded in 1970, as an umbrella group for the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus (NBCCC), the National Black Sisters Conference (NBSC), and the National Black Lay Catholic Caucus (NBLCC). However, tension over the mission and organizational structure of the organization led to the formal withdrawal of the NBSC and NBCCC in the early 1980s. Funding for the NOBC came primarily from an annual collection taken at Catholic churches around the country, called “Black Catholics Concerned.” The organization was endorsed by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, which maintained an Ad Hoc Committee as a liaison with NOBC.

NOBC’s major departments included the Office of Culture and Worship, Office of Evangelization, Department of Church Vocations, and Education Department. The organization’s work included promoting black clerical leadership, supporting the development of African-rooted liturgy and ministries, contributing to the revitalization of black parishes, and strengthening black Catholic education. NOBC also worked with the American Catholic hierarchy to bring issues around race to the forefront and participated in the 1976 “Call to Action” conference held by the U.S. bishops.

NOBC sponsored many conferences and events throughout the 1970s and 1980s. Among its most successful events was a regular conference on African American Culture and Worship (AACW). Beginning in 1980, it also hosted a Biennial Conference for the organization’s members. In 1988 and 1989, NOBC and NBLCC hosted two Lay Leadership Symposiums in Belleville, Illinois. The Office of Evangelization also sponsored revival events throughout the country in the early 1980s.

The NOBC's publications included its newsletter, Impact!, as well as Freeing the Spirit, a newsletter of the Office of Culture and Worship. Freeing the Spirit ceased publication in 1983, but Impact! continued sporadic publication through the 1980s.

Executive directors of the NOBC included: Br. Joseph Davis, S.M. (1970-1977), Fr. Cyprian Lamar Rowe, F.M.S. (1978-1980), James Henderson (1981-1987), Penelope Taylor Powell (1978 [acting director], 1987-1988), and Walter Hubbard (1988-ca.2007).

Although the NOBC continued its activity through the 1990s and early 2000s, its level of activity seems to have decreased.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS:

This collection documents NOBC's major activities and administrative operations. The majority of the records originated with the organization's office in Washington, DC, although some come from members of the Board of Directors. Also included are some records from NOBC's affiliated organizations, including the National Black Lay Catholic Caucus (NBLCC), National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus (NBCCC), and National Black Sisters Conference (NBSC). Finally, some records are included from the American Catholic Lay Network (ACLN), an organization which shared office space with NOBC in the 1980s.

Organizational Records found throughout the collection document NOBC's programmatic activities, including events and conferences, correspondence with individuals and organizations, gathering information about relevant issues, and other activities. Records of this type are present from all levels of the organization, including the Executive Director's office, NOBC departments, and affiliated organizations, particularly NBLCC.

Administrative and Financial Records relate to the operation and management of the organization. These records deal with personnel, accounting, memoranda, and the day-to-day operations of the NOBC office. Records relating to the annual Black Catholics Concerned (BCC) fundraising collection are also present, including a large volume of letters and receipts acknowledging individual donations.

Some boxes and groups of records have been identified as originating with one individual, and are described as such in the inventory below. These records often include correspondence, topical files, notes and drafts, and records relating to the activities of their department. Materials not relating to NOBC may also be included. Individuals with identifiable groups of records include Br. Joseph Davis, Fr. Cyprian Rowe, Penelope Taylor Powell, James Henderson, and Walter Hubbard (all Executive Directors), as well as Fr. Giles Conwill (Department of Church Vocations), Gertrude Morris (Office of Evangelization), Ronald Sharps (Office of Culture and Worship), James McConduit (board president), Angelique Butler (editor of Impact!), and Robert Robinson (NBLCC coordinator).

Other material types found throughout the collection include:

- Board of Directors records - transcripts, minutes, and correspondence between board members, staff, and legal counsel
- Printed material, clippings, and topical files - particularly relating to religious organizations and civil rights issues
- Correspondence - incoming and outgoing
- Publications - NOBC-produced reports, pamphlets, and other documents relating to the organization's work and issues of concern
- Audiovisual material - audiocassettes, VHS tapes, and vinyl records, including recordings of NOBC meetings and events, NOBC-produced material, and commercially published items. Digital copies of VHS tapes are available.
- Photographs - prints, negatives, and contact sheets. Most photos are unidentified.

Materials are in English.
