SUMMARY

Title: Ana Rodriguez-Soto Collection

Dates: circa 1960s-1990s (bulk 1960-1987)

Extent: 23 full Hollinger boxes (9.59 total linear feet)

Access: This collection is open for research by appointment.

Cite as: Ana Rodriguez-Soto Collection, St. Thomas University Library, Miami Gardens, FL.

Organization History: The Voice was the primary Catholic newspaper in South Florida between 1961-1990. It chronicled the both the Catholic and secular history of South Florida during the latter half of the 20th century.

Scope and contents: This collection includes photos and documents from the editors of the Catholic newspaper The Voice (1961-1990). Ana Rodriguez-Soto served as the final editor of The Voice and donated this content to St. Thomas University. Included in this collection are photos documenting world events from between 1960-1990s. Many of these photos are from national services such as the National Catholic News Service or the Associated Press. Certain photos feature events from Miami and South Florida. Local photos include parish schools, special events, notable people, Cuban refugees, and John Paul II's visit to Miami. Other contents include handwritten notes, press releases, pamphlets from various organizations, and miscellaneous content from the Miami Herald, The Voice, and other publications. This collection provides a helpful glimpse into the life and times of South Florida during the second half of the twentieth century. Materials are in English and Spanish.

Material types found throughout the collection include:

- Printed material, clippings, handwritten notes, and topical files - particularly relating to local events and activities in Miami and South Florida
- Correspondence - incoming and outgoing
- Publications - reports, pamphlets, and other documents relating to the organization's work and issues of concern
- Photographs - prints, negatives, and contact sheets. Some photos are unidentified.

Processing Information: Inventory and finding aid created by Jonathan Best and Jessica Orozco, Summer 2015.
