

CONFLICT OF LAWS
Summer in Spain Program 2025
M/T/W/TH 10a.m.-11:50p.m.

Professor Christian Lee González-Rivera

Syllabus¹

Required Text:

Brilmayer, Goldsmith, O'Connor & Vazquez, Conflict of Laws: Cases and Materials (Aspen) (8th ed. 2019), ISBN: 9781454899563.

Course Description:

This course offers an introduction to the rules, doctrines, and principles that make up the field of Conflict of Laws. The subject includes domestic and international principles that determine what law governs when multiple bodies of law or jurisdictions are implicated in the same dispute—whether a contract or tragic international flight accident is involved. The course introduces you to the concepts of choice of law, jurisdiction, and enforcement of foreign judgments.

Class Preparation:

Each class will consist of a combination of Socratic discussion and lecture. You are expected to read the assignments and participate in discussion with me and fellow classmates. I will call upon you to recite the facts and holdings of the cases assigned. Assignments are an average of 22 pages per class.

Attendance:

You're required to attend class. If you must miss class, please give me advance notice in writing, stating the reasons for your absence. That said, there is a limit of absences you can have, and I cannot control whether any of them is ultimately justified. That is an administrative issue to be taken up with the appropriate Dean and the Registrar's Office.

In addition to attending class, you must also attend timely. Class will start every day no later than five minutes into the allotted starting time. An attendance sheet will be passed around or I will roll call later during the class. You cannot arrive late (10 minutes after the start of class) and sign the attendance sheet. If you arrive late to class, and manage not to be disruptive, you may approach me after class is over to discuss the reason and whether you attended meaningfully enough to warrant signing the attendance sheet.

Lastly, you must attend meaningfully. That means not just that you should be prepared and participate but also that you should not be distracted during class. I strongly discourage using electronics for taking notes, laptops or tablets. While you are not forbidden from using these in class, if I believe that you are distracted, browsing the web, doing anything other than following the lecture, or distracting others with sounds or content, I will ask you to close it and remove it from your desk. Your behavior in class is at all times also governed by the Honor Code.

¹ This syllabus will be subject to additional revisions.

Grading and Examination:

The grade in this course will be based on your participation in class through presentation of cases (10% of your grade) and a take-home, closed-book examination, consisting of multiple choice questions (60% of your grade) and one essay question (30% of your grade) due electronically or in person no later than the Program's final exam deadline, and will cover all material previously assigned and discussed. Not one minute later will the Registrar or I accept your exams, which must also be anonymous.

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of the course, you should be able to:

1. identify, describe, and analyze the major judicial holdings on such topics as choice of law; jurisdiction; enforcement of foreign judgments; and constitutional limitations;
2. identify the legal issues and apply the correct rules, doctrines, and standards, to fact patterns in preparation for Bar examination; and
3. critically appraise existing doctrines based on considered stances on a wide range of issues.

Performance Indicators: Students will write a two-hour, open-book final exam consisting of multiple-choice questions.

Office Hours:

Please schedule all appointments in advance by email or arrangement in person.
