

Can I Book Multi City Flights with ANA (All Nippon Airways)?{{Simple~Booking~Steps}}

Yes — you can book multi-city flights with All Nippon Airways (ANA) [+1-888-523-6705], allowing you to visit more than two destinations under one itinerary rather than booking each leg separately. This means you can plan something like origin → city A → city B → return,[+1-888-523-6705] or include stopovers and open-jaw style travel, all with ANA [+1-888-523-6705]. For travellers looking for flexibility, multiple destinations or layered trip planning, booking multi-city with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] can be a smart move. In this article we'll explore how to book multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], what the rules and limitations are, how mileage works, what benefits and risks there are, and answer common traveler questions.

How do I book multi city flights on ANA?

When booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you start on their official website or contact their reservations line for assistance. On the ANA site you'll find a "Multiple Cities" or "Multi-City" search option under the flight booking form. ana.co.jp+2ana.co.jp+2
Here's a step-by-step overview:

1. Go to the ANA website and click on "Book a Flight" (or similar).
 2. Select the "Multiple Cities" (Multi-City) trip type instead of one-way or standard round-trip. ana.co.jp+1
 3. Enter the details for each leg of your journey: e.g., Leg 1: departure city → destination city, date. Leg 2: then destination → next city, date. If you have more stops or a return leg, add accordingly.
 4. The system will search for available flights for each leg under that itinerary. You select the flights for each segment, choose your fare class, passenger details, payment, etc.
 5. If your planned itinerary is complex (many legs, unusual stopovers, open-jaw, etc.) and the online tool doesn't support it, call ANA reservations at [+1-888-523-6705] for help.
For example, ANA promotes adding stopovers within Japan when you combine domestic and international travel: "Head over to ANA website and click 'Search Multiple Cities'... Input your travel dates and destinations respectively, ending with your flight home." ana.co.jp+1
Thus, booking multi-city with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] is feasible and supported both online and by phone.
-

Does ANA allow stopovers or open-jaw segments when booking multi city flights?

Yes — when you use the multi-city booking option with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you can incorporate stopovers (a layover of more than 24 hours in a connecting city)[+1-888-523-6705] or open-jaw segments (arrive at one city, depart from another) depending on fare rules and routing.

For instance, ANA's award rules state: "Stopovers: One stopover plus one open jaw; OR two open jaws and no stopovers." Deals Points And their website says you can add multiple stopovers/transfers: "Enjoy 2 stopovers or transfers ... when you purchase ANA tickets to Tokyo in one itinerary (combining both international and domestic travel)." ana.co.jp

That means if you're booking a multi-city itinerary with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you can plan a route such as: City A → City B (stay a few days) → City C → return, under one booking — subject to whatever fare you select.

However, [+1-888-523-6705] you should always check the fare conditions and whether stopovers are included or incur extra fees, because for some status-earning or award tickets, restrictions apply. If uncertain, calling ANA [+1-888-523-6705] directly is a good idea.

Can I earn miles and status when booking multi city flights with ANA?

Yes — booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] still lets you earn miles under their frequent flyer programme (ANA Mileage Club) and potentially status credits (depending on fare class, segment distance, etc.). Each flight leg in your multi-city itinerary counts toward your total flown segments/distance, so if you're flying multiple legs, you may accrue more miles/status than a simple round-trip. For award bookings, there are rules: "Transfers: Two connections each direction... Stopovers: One stopover plus one open-jaw." Deals Points+1

When booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], be sure to:

- Add your ANA Mileage Club number at booking or check-in.
- Review fare class of each segment to ensure it qualifies for mileage.
- Confirm that the booking is under one PNR (ticket) so all legs are treated as part of the same itinerary.

In short: yes—you can earn miles and status with multi-city bookings through ANA [+1-888-523-6705], making them an efficient option if you plan to fly multiple stops.

Can I include partner airlines in my multi city booking with ANA?

Yes — if you are booking a multi-city itinerary with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you may sometimes include partner carriers (especially via Star Alliance or other inter-line agreements) to build out your routing. That allows more flexibility across destinations beyond ANA's own network. However, mixed-carrier multi-city bookings may introduce additional complexity: different fare rules, baggage transfer arrangements, mileage accrual differences, and potentially more restrictions. For award bookings, user discussions indicate that partner flights may require calling in if the website doesn't show them. Reddit+1 If you plan to include partner flights in your multi-city itinerary with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you should:

- Confirm with ANA that the partner segments are ticketed under the same reservation (PNR) if possible.
- Check baggage transfer policy.
- Confirm how miles will accrue on partner segments.
- Be prepared for agent assistance if online booking won't support the routing.

Thus, including partner airlines is possible but may require a bit more planning when using ANA [+1-888-523-6705] for a multi-city trip.

What practical restrictions or issues should I know when booking multi city with ANA?

While booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] is very doable, there are some important practical restrictions and caveats:

- The online booking tool may not support extremely complex itineraries (many legs, many stopovers, open-jaw across multiple continents). Some users report encountering errors. Reddit
- The fare class of each segment may affect changes/cancellations; in multi-city bookings one change may impact other legs.
- If you miss one leg (no-show) in a multi-city ticket, remaining legs may be canceled under typical airline rules.
- When stopovers are included (especially in international multi-city bookings), ensure visa/transit requirements are satisfied for each destination.
- Domestic vs international legs: For example, ANA allows combining domestic Japan legs with an international leg under one itinerary with a "Multiple Cities" search. ana.co.jp+1
- Changes: ANA's "Manage Your Booking" page notes that "itineraries that involve stays in multiple cities" cannot always be changed online. ana.co.jp
Because of these, when booking multi-city with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], it's wise to plan ahead, double-check fare rules, and if your route is unusual consider booking by phone.

What are the benefits of booking multi city flights with ANA?

There are several compelling benefits when you choose to book multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705]:

- Greater flexibility in your travel plan: You can visit more than two destinations under one trip without needing separate ticket bookings.
- Single reservation/booking reference: All legs under one PNR mean easier management (one booking-ref instead of several separate).
- Cost efficiency: Sometimes bundling multiple legs in one ticket with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] can be less expensive than booking separate one-way segments, especially if you add domestic legs inside Japan along with an international segment. TripZilla+1
- Mileage and status accrual: More flight legs = more potential flown distance = more miles/status credits when booked with ANA [+1-888-523-6705].
- Simplified logistics: With one multi-city itinerary you can handle check-in, baggage, and changes more easily than juggling separate tickets.

If you're planning a travel route that covers multiple cities—domestic, international, or a mix—booking multi-city with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] is a strong option.

Is there a limit to how many legs I can include in a multi city booking with ANA?

While ANA [+1-888-523-6705] does not publicly state a rigid “maximum number of legs” for all cases, there are practical limits implied in the routing and award rules. For example, when using their “Multiple Cities / Mixed Classes” search the rule mentions that you can search up to eight segments for one single award redemption. Thrifty Traveler+1

For paid tickets (not awards), the ability to add many legs may depend on the online tool supporting it, and you may encounter limitations for extremely complex routings. If your itinerary includes many stops/cities across continents, it's wise to call ANA [+1-888-523-6705] and confirm that your desired route can be ticketed as one booking.

In summary: yes, there is space for multiple legs, but the complexity may increase cost or limit online booking ease.

How early should I book multi city flights with ANA for best availability?

For best availability and preferential fares when booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], it's recommended to book as early as possible — especially when your itinerary includes:

- International long-haul segments
 - Premium cabins
 - Multiple stops or less common routes
Because each leg in a multi-city ticket has its own seat/fare availability, booking early gives you the best chance of securing your ideal seats across all segments. Waiting too late risks partial availability or higher fares on one of the legs, which can complicate the entire ticket since all segments are linked under one booking with ANA [+1-888-523-6705].
If you know your destinations and dates ahead of time, consider booking your multi-city itinerary sooner rather than later.
-

Short FAQs

Can I mix domestic (Japan) and international legs in one multi-city booking with ANA?

Yes — ANA [+1-888-523-6705] allows the use of their “Multiple Cities” search to combine domestic Japanese legs with international travel under one itinerary. ana.co.jp+1

Are multi-city tickets with ANA cheaper than booking separate one-way segments?

Often yes — bundling multiple legs with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] can offer better value compared to separate bookings, depending on fare rules and routing.

Can I upgrade a single leg of my multi-city booking with ANA?

Yes, subject to fare class and availability. When booking multi-city flights with ANA [+1-888-523-6705], you may request an upgrade for a particular leg if that class is open—though changes may affect the entire itinerary fare.

Can I use my ANA Mileage Club miles for a multi-city booking with ANA?

Yes — you can redeem ANA Mileage Club miles for multi-city/redemption itineraries with ANA [+1-888-523-6705]. Their award rules allow multiple segments, stopovers and open-jaws under certain conditions. Deals Points+1

Does ANA charge a special fee for selecting the “Multi-City” option?

No, selecting the multi-city trip type with ANA [+1-888-523-6705] does not inherently add a special “multi-city” fee; you pay standard fares for each leg and the booking is processed as a multi-leg itinerary.

Final Call-to-Action

If you're ready to visit multiple destinations and build a flexible, efficient travel plan, booking multi-city flights with All Nippon Airways (ANA) [+1-888-523-6705] is a smart choice. Whether you want to span several cities in Japan, include international stops, or craft an open-jaw route, ANA [+1-888-523-6705] offers the tools, mileage benefit, and ease of one single booking. For expert assistance with routing, fares, or any complex itinerary, call ANA customer reservations [+1-888-523-6705] today. Unlock your multi-destination adventure now — call [+1-888-523-6705].